No	Question	Answer
1	Can those companies who have not taken the documentation ask the questions about this tender?	Clarification questions may be submitted by companies that haven't collected the tender documentation. However, since the clarification process relates to the content of the published Contract Notice and the Tender Dossier, it is advisable that questions are asked after a preliminary review of the available documentation (i.e. Tender Dossier and Contract Notice).
2	Can those companies who have not taken the documentation come on mandatory site visits and information meeting?	The published Contract Notice and the Tender Dossier do not limit the access to the site visit only to the companies that have collected the tender documentation; therefore any interested company may attend. Please note however that for companies intending to submit an offer (Tenderers) participation in the site visit is compulsory (in case of a consortium at least one member has to possess the attendance certificate).
